

JacquelineWakefield BSc Occupational Therapy

Jacqui graduated from Glasgow Caledonian University in 1995 with a BSc Occupational Therapy and commenced work in the West of Scotland Regional Neuroscience Centre. Since then she has worked in both national and regional neuroscience centres and had a senior role within a community rehabilitation team whose main focus was the care of clients with long-term neurological conditions. She took up her current position as clinical lead OT for neurosciences, Hammersmith Hospitals NHS Trust in August 2003 and has since then presented on fatigue at the National MS Society Conference, as well as teaching locally on stroke care.

Jacqui has recently secured a small research grant, through Hammersmith Hospitals to complete a small pilot study on the effect of environment on cognitive function, post brain injury.
