

Tina Ashburner DipCOT

Tina has 19 years experience as an occupational therapist. She specialised in adult neurology in 1990 and has a particular interest in Stroke rehabilitation.

Having been Head Occupational Therapist in two acute hospital trusts, Tina became involved in developing and teaching many of the neurological courses run today by Harrison Training.

She has taught as part of the neurology module on the undergraduate training programme at the London Medical School and Brunel University. She was the NANOT newsletter editor from 1997-99 and has presented at the NANOT National conference.

Tina currently works as an independent practitioner offering advice and training to local hospitals.

As a Senior Associate, Tina's current work includes advising on, developing and managing Harrison Training's neurological courses.
